ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE WILL BE IN FIGHT

MARSHALL OHIO JUSTICE COURT BILL IS ENDORSED

Vote In November Will Be the First Test of Sentiment On the Liquor Question In Years—Inferior Courts are As Necessary in the Rural Districts As are Municipal Courts in the Cities—The Matter Will Be On the Ballot In the Election This Fall.

Trustees of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League Thursday accepted the challenge of their enemies and are to support the Marshall bill restoring to justices of the peace their jurisdiction in misdemeanors. The action came after persistent gossip that the league might seek to evade responsibility for the fate of the bill in the referendum campaign, which is to be terminated in November. A formal statement said that the action was unanimous.

The vote on the Marshall bill is to afford the first test on the sentiment of the people of the state in years. The league contends that it is a prohibition issue. Opponents of the Marshall bill, as the name of Bender's organization indicates, do not concede that claim, but assert that the question is whether the people of the state desire commercialization of their inferior courts.

It is contended by Anti-Saloon League opponents that the vote is to show that the league is a waning power in Ohio affairs, that it does not possess the confidence of the people of the state, and that the Marshall bill was passed in defiance of popular sentiment.

The league's position was given in a formal statement.

The following is the text of the trustees' statement, which was signed by Harry Oldham, Sidney, Rev. I. E. Miller, Columbus; President R. E. Tulless, of Wittenberg college, Springfield; Harvey Yoder, Cleveland; Mrs. Francis Ensign Fuller, of Madison, representing the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance Union; Rev. T. B. Roberts, Lancaster, and Rev. J. F. Hoffman, Cincinnati.

"An important prohibition measure is being attacked thruout Ohio. The wet interests are attempting to defeat the Marshall law, just as they were behind the referendum to place 2.75 per cent beer in the state constitution in 1922. Their purpose is to break down dry enforcement by making it impossible to try liquor cases in inferior courts.

"The United States supreme court decision did not abolish the justice's court. It did not criticize the fee system as such. It did not limit the jurisdiction of justices or mayors. It emphasized this point, that a Judge of an inferior court could not be considered impartial as long as he could not collect his fees unless the defendant was found guilty.

"The Anti-Saloon League did not defend the old law, nor does it defend the very few justices and mayors who sought to commercialize their court. Senator Marshall introduced his bill in the legislature six weeks before the supreme court decision, and the league gladly supported it. The Marshall law passed the senate by a vote of 21 to 12, all but three of the 12 negative voters coming from Cleveland and Cincinnati. It passed the house by 92 to 9.

"When it was pending Federal Prohibition Administrator W. H. Walker and State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald said that without such a measure dry enforcement would be seriously handicapped. This has been proven by the fact that infractions of the dry law have increased in direct proportion as the

inferior courts have ceased to function.

"The referendum on the Marshall law was backed by the wet interests. Many signatures were obtained by a misunderstanding of the facts. The Moderation League was busy in some parts of the state, the Association Against the Prohibition amendment in others.

"Old-time wet leaders like Graham P. Hunt, of Cincinnati; Homer Durand, of Coshocton; C. C. Janes, of Columbus, busied themselves in seeing that petitions were circulated. Appeal was made to the members of automobile clubs on the false ground that the defeat of the Marshall bill would stop arrests for speeding in country districts. The truth of the matter is justices never had final jurisdiction in traffic law violation cases and would not have were the Marshall law sustained or defeated.

"The persons most vitally interested in the defeat of this law are the bootleggers, their friends and patrons. They have made a wet and dry issue of the Marshall law referendum. If that law is defeated at the polls, the result will be heralded thruout state and nation as a wet victory. Wet and anti-dry enforcement newspapers are opposing the Marshall law. Enforcement officials assert the law is needed. Lawyers agree that it meets the requirement of the supreme court decision.

"In view of these facts the trustees of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in session August 25, urge the voters of this state to rally to the support of the Marshall law and preserve to Ohio these courts, which are as old as the English-speaking people. Inferior courts are as necessary to the welfare of the country districts and to the proper enforcement of law as are municipal courts in the city. We believe law enforcement should be strengthened, not weakened. We believe that the law-abiding citizens desire that the work of the courts should not be curtailed at the behest of the lawless element.

"We urge the churches of Ohio, whose representatives we are, and all men and women who believe in prohibition, its observance and enforcement, to rally again to oppose the old wet interests, the outlawed liquor traffic and to work singly and thru the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League and kindred organizations for the support of the Marshall law at the coming November election. If every believer in law enforcement will go to the polls and vote the majority of 1922 will be repeated."

The machine left the road as it was making the turn. Cherry's neck was broken and his death is believed to have been instantaneous. Raymond's injuries are not believed to be serious. He was treated at University hospital.

Cherry and Raymond had been at the country club attending an outing of the patrol of the Columbus Lodge of Elks, of which both were members. So far as could be learned, no one saw the accident, but persons acquainted with both men said they believed that they were unfamiliar with the turn of the road there. Discarded Mower Is Easily Put in Shape

Little Time and Money Will Put Machine in Order.

Many times an old mower is discarded as worn out when a little time and money spent in replacing worn parts and adjusting the machine would put it in first-class shape again. It is pointed out by R. I. Shawl of the farm mechanics department, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Mower troubles can be classed under three main heads, namely: heavy draft, side draft and uneven or ragged stubble.

Heavy draft is caused from lack of lubrication, dull sickle, wear and side draft due to improper adjustment of the cutter bar parts. The cutter bar with the sickle and other cutting parts is the chief source of trouble. Side draft is due to a dragging back on the cutter bar of the uncut hay or grass and insufficient tension on the supporting spring to the cutter bar. A dull sickle in a properly adjusted cutter bar will not give side draft.

"In adjusting the cutter bar parts see that the guards are all in line. A hammer may be used to drive the guards back in line. The ledger plates must be held in place tightly and the edges must be sharp. The clips must hold the sickle sections down against the ledger plate so that the cutting will be done without chewing the stalks. The sickle sections should always center in the guards at the end of each stroke.

"Sickle breaking is a trouble experienced in some mowers and is usually due to the worn condition of the wearing plates, clips and guides that hold the sickle head in place. Adjustments for taking up this wear are provided on all mowers."

Efficient and Uniform Toxicity Made for Rats

According to results of experiments conducted jointly by the bureaus of biological survey and chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, a powder can be made from dried red-squill bulbs which has an efficient and uniform toxicity for rats, but at the same time apparently does not unduly endanger human beings or domestic animals.

The use of powdered red squill for the destruction of rats is comparatively recent in this country, although the poison has been in limited use in Europe for centuries. It has never come into popular use, however, even there, because of its tendency to vary greatly in potency. Several of the factors influencing its toxicity have been developed during the course of the present investigation. Officials of the Department of Agriculture anticipate that these experiments will be of material assistance in the production of a uniform and stable squill product. This poison should greatly benefit the poultrymen and farmers generally who hesitate to use some of the commercial rat poisons on account of the attending danger to live stock.

Best Time to Make Hay From Red Clover Crop

The time to make hay from sweet clover is either the year after it is sown or the same fall it is sown. The best hay is obtained the same fall. Ordinarily it should be cut in September. It can be cut as late as October 1, if the weather at that time is suitable for curing the hay. The crop need not be cut any higher than any other hay crop.

In the late summer, the sweet clover plants form numerous large buds at the crowns which produce the next year's crop, and after these buds are well formed the sweet clover is ready for the winter, and taking off the season's growth does not injure it.

The second season, sweet clover must be cut high to keep from killing it. Two or three green leaves and branches should be left on the stubble. A thin stand of plants can be cut lower than a thick stand.

Farmers Being Urged to Cast Vote for Alfalfa

John Brown, agricultural agent in Owen county, Kentucky, taking advantage of the open political season, is urging farmers to cast their votes for Mr. Al Falfa. He says that if Mr. Al Falfa is elected he promises to do many things of real benefit to agriculture. Some of his promises follow:

"1. I promise to put more dollars in the pockets of farmers.
 "2. I will see to it that we have better luck with sheep, because we will have better feed.
 "3. I promise to gather nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil, thereby building up fertility."
 And he will make good. Vote for him.

Destroy Cutworms by Use of Poison and Plowing

The Iowa station reports that farmers have successfully controlled cut worm and army-worm invasions by broadcasting a poison mash with an endgate seeder. This mash is easily prepared from the following formula: Wheat bran, 20 to 25 pounds; paris green or sodium fluoride, 1 pound; cheap molasses, 2 pounds, and water 2 gallons. Early fall plowing of grass and pasture land hits the worms in their weakest spot, however, as it destroys a large part of the available food supply for late fall and early spring feeding.

Frederick A. Wallis, New York's commissioner of corrections, has many ideas about his work, one being that prisons and corrective institutions should build up their inmates' self-respect by making them self-supporting.

Mr. Wallis, at a luncheon in New York, was talking to a woman about a certain reformatory.

"A queer thing happened to a young fellow back in 1901 in that reformatory," he said.

"Yes?" said the woman. "What was it?"

"He reformed."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

FEWER AND BETTER
CHURCHES NEEDED,
U. B. LEADERS TOLD

Columbus and other Big Cities
Would Be Better Off, Rev.
Dr. Lamb Says in Conference Talk.

Fewer and better organized churches with denominationalism subserved or wiped out entirely, and greater stress on the real purpose—work for the kingdom of God—were advocated by Rev. B. L. Lamb, secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, in an address before the twenty-seventh annual Southeast Ohio conference of the U. B. church last night in Washington Ave. Church, Columbus.

Columbus and other big cities would be better off with only one-fourth of their churches, were they properly located and equipped to meet the community's needs, Rev. Dr. Lamb asserted.

More salesmanship is required to sell religion, than to sell automobiles, real estate, insurance, or any commodity that can be felt, touched or measured, he said.

A plea for Christian support of government, international peace, universal brotherhood and law enforcement was made by Bishop A. R. Clippinger, Dayton.

"Every preacher should thunder from the pulpit his messages of peace and reasons for disarmament," he said. "Race prejudice will never make for peace."

While separate, yet the church and government are working hand in hand, he pointed out. With general applause as approval, Bishop Clippinger advocated "deportation of any man who would tear down the government of the United States."

He declared the next presidential campaign will be the most important since the Civil War days.

"This nation will live or die," he said, referring to law enforcement, "according to the regard her citizens have for the law of the land. It remains for every minister and every liberty-loving citizen to create a sentiment of loyalty and good will."

Other speakers last night included Rev. J. H. Harris, conference superintendent; Henry Green, on behalf of the local church; Charles Thurber, representing Mayor Thomas; Rev. A. G. Schatzman, the Columbus Ministerial Association, and R. L. Dickinson, acting general executive of Columbus Y. M. C. A.

Earl Anderson, Ashville; Miss Thelma Pletcher, Crooksville, and Miss Edna Beougher, Logan, have been recommended to Rev. Mr. Harris for licenses to the conference. A. Ward Clutch, Columbus, has been recommended for a quarterly conference license, as also have Charles F. Hizer, Coalton, and Raymond Chapman, Westerville.

Those recommended for lay licenses were G. C. Bloomfield, Ashville; Roy H. Bush, Camel; George Mercer, Lucasville, and J. L. Taylor, South Webster.

The council of administration recommended that the entire conference be divided into four commissions for the purpose of deliberating upon church problems. The commissions are to be named: Christian education, worldwide evangelism, finance, and social welfare.

Interesting Youth of Nation in Aviation

Thousands of boys and girls on organized playgrounds in some 800 American cities are expected to compete this summer in a national model airplane construction and flying contest encouraged by a committee headed by Orville Wright, airplane pioneer. The recent achievements of aviation, particularly the Lindbergh flight, inspired this competition, which will be conducted by the Playground and Recreation Association of America. It will come to a climax at national finals to be held in Memphis in October. The contest was suggested by Dr. John H. Finley, educator and editor, as a means of interesting the youth of America in the scientific principles underlying aviation. The three federal air secretaries, F. Trubee Davison, of the War department; Edward P. Warner of the Navy, and William C. McCracken of the Commerce department, have accepted membership on the contest committee.

England's Rich Coal Field

One of the richest coal fields in the world, estimated to contain 23,000,000,000 tons, has been discovered near Hull, England. It is a continuation of an exhausted vein and extends 40 miles to the coast.

Silerius' Revolt
It is related that the wife of Silerius, the Roman, had a habit of insulting her husband at least once a day, believing this her wifely duty, in order to keep him within proper bounds. Silerius once said to her: "Madam, I fear you overdo your duty. I beg that you insult me only three times a week, that I may be able to overlook it, and save us from a final break in our domestic affairs."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

LOANS UP TO $500

We all enjoy listening to the yarns of an "old-timer," but its mighty poor policy to listen and accept the advice of the one who refuses to keep up with the times who believes that the only safe way to travel is "by rig" and that borrowing money is a shameful and terrible disgrace.

A great many prosperous men today owe their success to the fact that they were able to borrow money in order to take advantage of a chance to make a profit. Somewhere on another page of this newspaper is a real bargain for you—grab it up and make your start. The City Loan will supply the money.

LETTER FROM A TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBER

Below we print a letter from N. T. Weldon, which contains some good food for thought and which we hope will be carefully considered by all our readers. We would be glad to publish the views of others of our citizens.

Mr. Weldon's letter is as follows:
 Editor Union-Herald:—Just a word about the new telephone rates:

I am not against the telephone company so long as they treat us right, but the new rates are too high and I do not think they are at all reasonable.

To take all the phones out of the residences in the town would be a good thing for all of us in many ways. It would be a great source of economy as in most cases the telephone is too handy and we order too often and too much. Look at the good it would do us, physically, too, because we all sit and ride around too much and the art of walking is gone. To walk to the grocery, meat market and other stores would do us all good and at the same time we could see and get just what we wanted.

For my part we can do without our residence phone.

Let's hear from others along this line.

Yours truly,

N. T. Weldon.

MOTOR LINES ARE POPULAR IN COUNTRY

Making Very Serious Inroads
 on Business of Steam and Electric Railroads.

Steam and interurban electric rail roads are feeling the pinch of the increasing patronage of the motor passenger bus lines. The latter are making heavy inroads on the business of the former. This is largely accounted for by the frequency with which they operate and the accommodation
 afforded by landing passengers in the business center of the towns which
 they reach, or making stops at intersecting streets before the center of the town is reached.

The proof that the steam and electric roads are feeling keenly the new competition is shown by the large number of protests constantly filed
 in the office of the Public Utilities
 commission, asking that certificates
 be denied applicants for motor passenger bus lines. These invariably contain two outstanding reasons; that the need of further transportation facilities is not demanded by the public and that to grant the certificate will materially reduce the revenues of the protesting company.

Another convincing proof is the large number of trains which the steam roads have asked authority to abandon during the past year. Many of these have been on the larger rail
 roads of the state. Still another proof
 is in the fact that several of the larger interurban roads have inaugurated motor lines themselves and are running the busses in conjunction
 with their interurban cars.

During the past year more than 200 protests have come into the office
 of the Utilities commission against
 the motor bus lines and the larger
 part of these have been within the last six months.

They come from every part of the state and all assign the reason that competition with the motor line has reduced profits until trains are being operated at a loss.

Few complain of the opposition
 which comes to their freight business
 altho the growing number of motor freight transportation lines is giving alarm to what will happen if this continues.

More than half the hearings before
 the Utilities commission at present is given over to consideration of these
 protests and frequently the number
 is so large that the commission is forced to divide itself into two separate bodies, in order to keep pace
 with the accumulating work.

WHERE "NELLIE GRAY" WAS WRITTEN.

Two Ohio villages have long been
 in dispute as to which is the birthplace of the famous ballad, "Darling
 Nellie Gray," written by Benjamin
 R. Hanby. Westerville and Rushville
 both lay claim to the honor and each
 appears to have excellent evidence,
 so the controversy has continued.
 Mrs. Virginit Book, 86 years old, a lifelong resident of Rushville and a former pupil in the school where Hanby taught was an intimate friend
 of Hanby's sister. Mrs. Book said
 she often visited at the home where Hanby lived while teaching school
 and often saw Hanby working on the ballad.

"While he was composing 'Nellie Gray' "she said, "he would frequently tell our class about the verse he was working on at the time. Often
 he would write a few lines of a verse
 in class and many times I saw him
 working in the little building after school had been dismissed. When Hanby completed the song he taught
 it to the class by pointing out the words on the blackboard. I led the class when the ballad was first sung."

On the other hand, Mrs. Cornelia Comings of Girard, Kansas, a former resident of Westerville, in an article
 published in the Ohio Magazine in 1906, asserted that she recalled the initial singing of the song at the Hanby home in Westerville.

"I well remember the first time I heard it," she said. "We were at a gathering in Rev. Mr. Hanby's home
 one evening. We always had music
 at such times. At last I was called upon to listen to a song by young Hanby. I admired it very much and then Ben told me it was intended for me."—Kansas City Star.

AMUSEMENTS

With the entire picture depicting only a five days' transcontinental railroad trip, "A Little Journey," adapted from the story by Rachel Crothers and directed by Robert Z. Leonard, is proving to patrons of the Met theater to be one of the most delightful pieces of entertainment of the year.

The train, consisting of engine, diner, baggage and express car, several Pullman cars and an observation coach, was brought to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on a spar track especially built for the occasion. In these practically the entire action of the picture takes place.

To make the film as novel as possible, real train and Pullman crews were used, and replicas of actual scenes enroute across the continent were built as huge sets at the M-G-M studio.

The time covered in the story consists of only five days—from the moment the train pulls out of New York until its arrival in San Francisco. This is the first time a picture has ever been filmed in its entirety aboard a train, with all the action taking place during a continuous trip.

While a great deal of the picture was filmed aboard the train at the studio, several sequences were filmed in the open country between Los Angeles and San Francisco, and in the station of the latter city.

Claire Windsor has the leading feminine role, that of Julie Rutherford, while William Haines, hero of "Brown of Harvard," has the part of George Manning, the smart youth who buys Julie a ticket to replace the one she lost in her exciting departure from the eastern metropolis.

Harry Carey, famous western film star, plays the character role of Alexander Smith and Claire McDowell, who was Ramon Novarro's mother in "Ben-Hur," is seen in the role of Aunt Louise.

George Smith, colored Pullman porter for many years, who is known to thousands of travelers between Chicago and the west coast made up more berths during the making of the picture, than he made up in ten years of transcontinental Pullman work.

THE BILLIONAIRE SPEAKS.

When an advertiser baits his hook with a testimonial from someone who knows nothing about the article, he's going fishing for suckers every time. Barnum certainly furnished the blueprints for building the gullible public.

When a man gets the championship belt as a pugilist he is supposed to become omniscient at the same time. Then his word is the best authority on anything the advertisers have for sale from corals to cars. That's nonsense unfenced.

But when the billionaire, Rockefeller, speaks about the stacking of the gold ducats we are getting an oration from the most skillful stacker the world has ever seen. Now listen to him.

"I seldom put my hand upon the pillow at night without speaking a few words to myself in this wise:

"Because you have got a start, you think you are quite a merchant; look out or you will lose your head—go steady.

"These intimate conversations with myself, I am sure, had a great influence on my life."

Thanks, friend Croesus, you said a bookful!

And so it is well to talk to yourself once in a while. You'll have a select audience who will understand every word, and who can't get up and walk out.

This is a twofold example the billionaire sets us, each fold teeming with possibility.

First, he admonishes us to "intimate conversations with ourselves." Get your mirror and sit down and talk with the fellow in it.

Secondly, he gives us a sample of one of the eloquent orations when himself is the only auditor.

Don't mislay your occiput. Don't get your wires crossed and count a start a windup. Don't play ague in business. Go steady like the diurnal turn of the world.

Any fish ought to feel complimented to be caught on bait like that.—Alexander Cairns.

Owl's Noiseless Flight

The flight of the owl is accomplished without the least noise, to enable it to reach its prey, some say, but in a recent book on birds the author says it has often occurred to him, however, that the silence of the owl's flight is to enable the bird itself to hear, rather than to prevent others from hearing it.

BIRTHPLACE OF HYMN MARKED BY TABLET

History of "He Leadeth Me" Told by Author.

Philadelphia.—A bronze tablet has been placed by the United Gas Improvement company on its new building here as a permanent marker of the birthplace of the hymn "He Leadeth Me," and the historic fact that the first Baptist church once stood on the present site of the company's building. The tablet was erected on the Arch street side of the building. It bears date of June 1, 1926, erection having been delayed by the building of the new structure and the construction of the subway.

Information that paved the way for the erection of the tablet was given two years ago by the late Rev. Dr. John Gordon, a Baptist clergyman who pointed to a brownstone dwelling at 1409 Arch street, adjoining the new building, and said: "That old dwelling has a remarkable history; a wonderful hymn, 'He Leadeth Me,' was written there. The Rev. Dr. Gilmore wrote it way back in the '60s. The hymn has been sung all over the world."

Words Set to Music.

Dr. Gilmore, in his own account of the writing of the hymn, said:

"As a young man I was supplying for a couple of Sundays the pulpit of the first Baptist church in Philadelphia. At the midweek service—on the twenty-sixth of March, 1861—I set out to give the people an exposition of the twenty-third Psalm, which I had given before on three or four occasions; but this time I did not get further than the words, 'He leadeth me.' Those words took hold of me as they had never done before. I saw in them a significance and beauty of which I had never dreamed.

"At the close of the meeting a few of us kept on talking about the thought I had emphasized; and then and there, on a blank page of the brief from which I had intended to speak, I penciled the hymn, handed it to my wife and thought no more about it.

"It occurred to her months afterward to send the hymn to a paper published in Boston, where it was printed. It attracted the attention of William B. Bradbury, who slightly modified the refrain and set the hymn to the music which has done so much to promote its popularity.

Hears His Hymn Sung.

"I did not know until 1865 that my hymn had been set to music. I went to Rochester to preach as a candidate before the Second Baptist church. Going into their chapel on the day that I reached the city, I took up a hymnal to see what they sang, and opened it at my own hymn, 'He Leadeth Me.' I accepted it as an indication of divine guidance, and have no doubt I was right."

Joseph H. Gilmore was born in Boston, April 29, 1834, the son of Joseph Albee Gilmore, governor of New Hampshire from 1863 to 1865. He was educated at Phillips-Andover academy, Brown university, and Newton Theological seminary.

Professor Gilmore taught at Newton one year and then became pastor of the Baptist church at Fisherville, N. H. He was called to the Second Baptist church of Rochester in 1865 and occupied the pulpit for two years. He was then appointed to the chair of English language and literature at the University of Rochester. He retired in 1908 after more than 40 years of service.

3,000 More Varieties of Roses in 20 Years

London.—Horticulturists of England have much more to contend with in the way of selecting flowers than they had several years ago.

Statistics just issued show there are 3,000 more different kinds of roses than there were 20 years ago. In the same time the gladioli have risen from 2,000 varieties to 12,000. In 1907 there were only 1,500 sorts of dahlias, whereas there now are 8,000.

Research in poultry nutrition, prevention, extension of the industry and marketing of fowls were discussed in sessions held by various divisions of the congress.

SUCCESS IN FIGHT ON DISEASE GERMS

Disease-causing bacteria have many devices to perpetuate their kind in an adverse world. Bacteriologists of the Hooper Foundation for Medical Research, University of California, have shown that tetanus spores may resist the temperature of boiling water for ninety minutes, botulism in vegetable juices for five and one-half hours and those of a closely related but harmless species, of eight and one-half hours. Other workers have proved that typhoid and other organisms may remain alive for years at refrigerator or lower temperatures. This constitutes a factor of great danger for man and animals which it is the function of scientific research to obviate, says Dr. George E. Coleman, of the Hooper foundation. "The brilliant success," he states, "that has been attained already, in which the experimental use of mice and guinea pigs has played a large part, is constantly being proclaimed by statistical evidence of fewer food poisonings and typhoid outbreaks as well as by increased protection from many of our other microscopic foes."

Bachelor's Shortcomings

Old bachelors may have gotten that way through mistaken notions of themselves as well as of women. They can explain it if they will. But it is very evident that having failed to embrace opportunities they have nothing left to hug but delusions.—Grit.

Another business responded to the lure of Linden advantages, when The Littleton Candy Company this week moved from 2057 North Fourth street to 2321 Cleveland avenue.

Great Drawing Power

Charles Hanson Towne, the poet, gave a dinner at the Ritz in Paris during his recent European tour, and one of the sensations of the Ritz dining room was the success of a very aged and decrepit man. Though his age was great, and though his decrepitude amounted almost to paralysis or palsy, a dozen of the most beautiful girls in Paris hovered about him continually.

"How that old man attracts the girls," a lady said to Mr. Towne. "What can be the secret of his attraction, I wonder?"

"Why, don't you know?" the poet laughed. "He's a steel magnate."

Car No. 1—15,000 miles 61.377 M. P. H.—less than 14,664 minutes

Car No. 3—15,000 miles 62.709 M. P. H.—less than 14,353 minutes

Sedan

Three Auburn 8-88 Stock Cars Ran Total of:

42,000 miles in less than 14,664 minutes

Daring and unprecedented. Far in excess of any test ever imposed on stock cars. Not done behind pad locks and timed by factory employees, but publicly, under American Automobile Association sanction and supervision.

We decided to go to extremes never before undertaken by any manufacturer in order to completely, conclusively, and overwhelmingly prove Auburn is a faster, more efficient and more durable stock car.

Through blinding fogs; through down pours of rain, under the hottest sun in years; 28 thousand times around the 1½ mile track on slippery boards; never have men and machines endured such abnormal strains!

Nine drivers, working relays days and night, could not over tax the endurance and speed of the Auburn cars. Old records completely smashed from 5 to 5,000 miles for fully equipped stock cars. New records at every revolution of the wheels from 5,000 to 15,000 miles. The speed was phenomenal . . . 34 new stock car records . . .

But What Of It?

We knew all along that Auburn cars are that fast. But, it is not Auburn's proven speed superiority that is most significant . . . frankly, that was easy and incidental. What IS important is the fine character of car necessary for all three cars to survive such speed.

How's This For Proof?

After one of the roadsters had run the unequalled distance of ten thousand gruelling miles, in less than 9,479 minutes at an average speed of over 63 miles per hour, it was taken off the track, thoroughly checked—necessary replacements made—tuned and greased.

Then, for 1,000 miles more, this same car spurred forward at over 72 miles per hour. That proves reserve power, speed and endurance unknown in motor cars until now.

Another Thriller

After 2,637 miles, the Sedan running at about

70 miles an hour speed, turned over on the wet track, during a rainstorm in the middle of the night, slid on its top with all four wheels in the air, for about 50 feet, righted itself and then crashed into the railing. Two doors and three fenders were torn off, radiator and windshield smashed. Seven hours were spent for photographs, radiator and other body repairs and the car went back on the track. It caught up with the other cars, and finished the 15,000 miles at over 62 miles per hour speed. That proves the strong construction, and endurance of Auburn cars, although because in the accident, it lost three fenders and two doors, its entire distance cannot be counted as an official A. A. A. record, but it was officially timed by the A. A. A.

Triple Proof

It would have been perfectly startling if one car had broken all these records, but three Auburn cars were in this test—and all three of them did honor to the name of Auburn.

FARM BUREAU

Corn Borer Marches South.

The recent reports of the federal field scouts show that the European Corn Borer has been discovered in Franklin, Union, Shelby, Delaware, Harrison and Jefferson counties.

This means that the corn borer is just across the border from the Pickaway plains. No official infestation of the corn borer has yet been discovered in Pickaway County however. These facts indicate the problem which will soon confront the Pickaway county corn grower. Clean harvesting, low cutting, destruction of standing stalks after harvest will aid materially in keeping this enemy in check.

Might Spare a Few

It is said that never was there a gentler critic than Doctor McClintock of Dickinson college. One day a young orator presented his speech for Doctor McClintock's approval. He evidently did not anticipate adverse criticism.

He received it, nevertheless, given in the doctor's gentle, humorous way, which never could offend.

"It's a good speech," he said, "but there is, perhaps, a little too much of a certain sort of rhetoric. For instance, I find two midnight owls, two midnight wolves, three American eagles and four unfurled banners. It seems to me the supply exceeds the demand."

Many a seemingly successful man owes it all to his wife's father.

LITTLE CITY
I found a little city
Where everything was still,
A little quiet city
Upon a grassy hill.
And some came to the city,
Who prayed, and some who wept,
But all the people living there
Were silent, for they slept.

The flowers in the city
Were pink and gold and blue;
Rosemary for remembrance,
And pansy buds, and rue.
And all the trees that grew there
Were gallantly in leaf.
But, oh, the little city,
Was still, beyond belief.

Yet I, who found the city,
I was not wholly sad;
For all the peaceful beauty
Made something in me glad.
I knew that He who planned it
Does all things for the best,
That, in His care, the city
Knew blessed love and rest.

TOOK COFFIN ON JOURNEY FOR HEALTH

Flaunting death, pushing a coffin ahead of him, on which was inscribed "This is my coffin," California or die," Bedros Sarejian, an Armenian, 70, was overtaken by death as he trundled his queer wagon on the Brandt pike at Sulphur Grove, near Dayton, late Thursday. He was found dying by the roadside. An auto was believed responsible for his death.
Sarejian set out from New York City July 1, in search of health. The coffin on wheels served as traveling bag and commissariat. It held his food, spare clothing and a few other articles including a Turkish water-bottle pipe.

They Arrived at Farrow Street

By ROSE MEREDITH

(Copyright.)
AMY FARROW was waiting for the last trolley car home. She had been spending the evening with one of her friends on the outskirts of the city, and had stayed later than she intended. Now she blamed herself for being so late—it had been a mistake to leave her grandmother alone, though Phoebe Riddle had promised to spend the evening with the old lady, and Phoebe was their best friend and next-door neighbor.
When at last it came she got in and settled down in a corner, for it would take fifteen minutes to reach the street where the Farrow's lived.
The conductor thrust a grimy hand forward and Amy dropped a nickel in it, and went on thinking about Jane Mason, whose wedding presents she had come out to see this evening. Jane was to be married next week and the girls had been full of the coming event. Now that Amy was alone, her thoughts reverted to her own affairs—she might have been planning her own wedding if she had not broken her engagement to Billy Wakefield so long ago! It was perhaps a year since her father's sudden death at a critical point in his business affairs had brought utter ruin to the family—and when they had had to sell the large house and all of its contents and go to live in Granay's old-fashioned house, Mrs. Farrow had mourned so over her husband's failure and death that her own fragile health was weakened, and it was not long before she, too, joined her departed husband. That left Amy all alone with Grandmother Farrow in the old Farrow homestead.

Amy was very proud in those days, and because she could not bring money with her love, she had broken her engagement to Billy Wakefield, who was the son of the richest man in the state! Billy did not go near Amy again. She had taken a teaching position in a fashionable girls' school in the town, and she and Granay lived comfortably enough.

At this point in her musings, the conductor came around for another fare and this time it was a different hand that was presented for payment—a clean-shaven, brown, muscular hand, wearing on the little finger a true lover's knot of twisted gold and platinum. It was a ring just like the one that Amy had given her lover when they became engaged—and which he had never returned to her.

Amy pulled a ten-cent piece from her purse, it slipped from her fingers and bounced out of the seat and fell somewhere on the floor.

"Oh, that is all I have!" declared Amy, looking up at the conductor, and then, staring fascinated, for the handsome, good-looking face was that of Billy Wakefield!

As for Billy, he stared at her from deep blue eyes, as if he could not speak.

"That is the last cent that I have with me," declared Amy in a faltering voice.

"Never mind—we will find it in the morning," and he fetched out the proper amount and put it in his pocket, as he rang up the fare, handing her a bright nickel in change.

"Thank you," said Amy. "You are quite sure that you can find the ten-cent piece in the morning?"

"Sure as can be," he said, and touching his cap went to the front of the car.

After awhile the last passenger got off, and Amy was left alone. As she sat there, she wondered why Billy Wakefield should be working for the trolley company—she had not heard that Mr. Wakefield had failed.

Just then, Billy Wakefield, looking so smart and trim in his new dark blue uniform, came down the car again and removed his cap.

"There is another fare due, Miss Farrow," he said in a low tone, and then Amy, her eyes hidden under long lashes, dropped the nickel in his extended palm. His hand closed on her small one and he bent over the seat.

"Amy," he said tensely, "are you happy, dear?"

"No, Billy, never without you!" she said with a little sob in her voice.

"Then," whispered Billy, slipping into the seat beside her, "will you marry me, Amy?"

"Yes, Billy," she whispered, her tear-wet cheek against his.

"You don't mind my being a trolley conductor?"

"I just don't care at all—about anything except you!"

"You haven't asked once why I am on this car," accused Billy after awhile. "Have you heard that the Wakefield fortune is a thing of the past?"

"No! I hadn't heard!" declared Amy. "I am sorry for your father and mother, Billy—it is hard for old people to be deprived of—"

"Rubbish, my love," declared Billy. "The Wakefield millions still stand firm as a rock—I am doing this job on a bet with dad who is a big stockholder, and all the money I earn goes into the trolleyman's union fund. Next week I have to go back to the office again—do you still love me, Amy?"

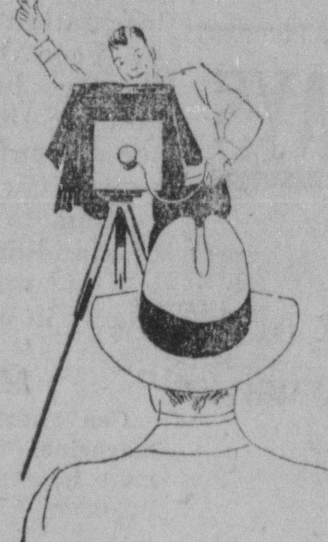

"Always—Billy, I cannot help it," she confessed, and then the trolleyman sang out—

"Farrow street!"

So Amy could dream of wedding plans all over again!

The Indians of the pre-Columbian period did have a variety of corn similar to our popcorn. In the Southwest this was called "little corn." ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE WILL BE IN FIGHT

MARSHALL OHIO JUSTICE COURT BILL IS ENDORSED

Vote In November Will Be the First Test of Sentiment On the Liquor Question In Years—Inferior Courts are As Necessary in the Rural Districts As are Municipal Courts in the Cities—The Matter Will Be On the Ballot In the Election This Fall.

Trustees of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League Thursday accepted the challenge of their enemies and are to support the Marshall bill restoring to justices of the peace their jurisdiction in misdemeanors. The action came after persistent gossip that the league might seek to evade responsibility for the fate of the bill in the referendum campaign, which is to be terminated in November. A formal statement said that the action was unanimous.

The vote on the Marshall bill is to afford the first test on the sentiment of the people of the state in years. The league contends that it is a prohibition issue. Opponents of the Marshall bill, as the name of Bender's organization indicates, do not concede that claim, but assert that the question is whether the people of the state desire commercialization of their inferior courts.

It is contended by Anti-Saloon League opponents that the vote is to show that the league is a waning power in Ohio affairs, that it does not possess the confidence of the people of the state, and that the Marshall bill was passed in defiance of popular sentiment.

The league's position was given in a formal statement.

The following is the text of the trustees' statement, which was signed by Harry Oldham, Sidney; Rev. I. E. Miller, Columbus; President R. E. Tulless, of Wittenberg college, Springfield; Harvey Yoder, Cleveland; Mrs. Francis Ensign Fuller, of Madison, representing the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance Union; Rev. T. B. Roberts, Lancaster, and Rev. J. F. Hoffman, Cincinnati.

"An important prohibition measure is being attacked through Ohio. The wet interests are attempting to defeat the Marshall law, just as they were behind the referendum to place 2.75 per cent beer in the state constitution in 1922. Their purpose is to break down dry enforcement by making it impossible to try liquor cases in inferior courts.

"The United States supreme court decision did not abolish the justice's court. It did not criticize the fee system as such. It did not limit the jurisdiction of justices or mayors. It emphasized this point, that a Judge of an inferior court could not be considered impartial as long as he could not collect his fees unless the defendant was found guilty.

"The Anti-Saloon League did not defend the old law, nor does it defend the very few justices and mayors who sought to commercialize their court. Senator Marshall introduced his bill in the legislature six weeks before the supreme court decision, and the league gladly supported it. The Marshall law passed the senate by a vote of 21 to 12, all but three of the 12 negative voters coming from Cleveland and Cincinnati. It passed the house by 92 to 9.

"When it was pending Federal Prohibition Administrator W. H. Walker and State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald said that without such a measure dry enforcement would be seriously handicapped. This has been proven by the fact that infractions of the dry law have increased in direct proportion as the

inferior courts have ceased to function.

"The referendum on the Marshall law was backed by the wet interests. Many signatures were obtained by a misunderstanding of the facts. The Moderation League was busy in some parts of the state, the Association Against the Prohibition amendment in others.

"Old-time wet leaders like Graham P. Hunt, of Cincinnati; Homer Durand, of Coshocton; C. C. Janes, of Columbus, busied themselves in seeing that petitions were circulated. Appeal was made to the members of automobile clubs on the false ground that the defeat of the Marshall bill would stop arrests for speeding in country districts. The truth of the matter is justices never had final jurisdiction in traffic law violation cases and would not have were the Marshall law sustained or defeated.

"The persons most vitally interested in the defeat of this law are the bootleggers, their friends and patrons. They have made a wet and dry issue of the Marshall law referendum. If that law is defeated at the polls, the result will be heralded through state and nation as a wet victory. Wet and anti-dry enforcement newspapers are opposing the Marshall law. Enforcement officials assert the law is needed. Lawyers agree that it meets the requirement of the supreme court decision.

"In view of these facts the trustees of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League in session August 25, urge the voters of this state to rally to the support of the Marshall law and preserve to Ohio these courts, which are as old as the English-speaking people. Inferior courts are as necessary to the welfare of the country districts and to the proper enforcement of law as are municipal courts in the city. We believe law enforcement should be strengthened, not weakened. We believe that the law-abiding citizens desire that the work of the courts should not be curtailed at the behest of the lawless element.

"We urge the churches of Ohio, whose representatives we are, and all men and women who believe in prohibition, its observance and enforcement, to rally again to oppose the old wet interests, the outlawed liquor traffic and to work singly and thru the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League and kindred organizations for the support of the Marshall law at the coming November election. If every believer in law enforcement will go to the polls and vote the majority of 1922 will be repeated."

The machine left the road as it was making the turn. Cherry's neck was broken and his death is believed to have been instantaneous. Raymond's injuries are not believed to be serious. He was treated at University hospital.

Cherry and Raymond had been at the country club attending an outing of the patrol of the Columbus Lodge of Elks, of which both were members. So far as could be learned, no one saw the accident, but persons acquainted with both men said they believed that they were unfamiliar with the turn of the road there. The turn is abrupt and the ditch into which the car rolled is about five feet deep.

Discarded Mower Is Easily Put in Shape

Little Time and Money Will Put Machine in Order.

Many times an old mower is discarded as worn out when a little time and money spent in replacing worn parts and adjusting the machine would put it in first-class shape again, it is pointed out by R. I. Shawl of the farm mechanics department, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Mower troubles can be classed under three main heads, namely: heavy draft, side draft and uneven or ragged stubble.

Heavy draft is caused from lack of lubrication, dull sickle, wear and side draft due to improper adjustment of the cutter bar parts. The cutter bar with the sickle and other cutting parts is the chief source of trouble. Side draft is due to a dragging back on the cutter bar of the mowed hay or grass and insufficient tension on the supporting spring to the cutter bar. A dull sickle in a properly adjusted cutter bar will not give side draft.

"In adjusting the cutter bar parts see that the guards are all in line. A hammer may be used to drive the guards back in line. The ledger plates must be held in place tightly and the edges must be sharp. The clips must hold the sickle sections down against the ledger plate so that the cutting will be done without chewing the stalks. The sickle sections should always center in the guards at the end of each stroke.

"Sickle breaking is a trouble experienced in some mowers and is usually due to the worn condition of the wearing plates, clips and guides that hold the sickle head in place. Adjustments for taking up this wear are provided on all mowers."

Efficient and Uniform Toxicity Made for Rats

According to results of experiments conducted jointly by the bureau of biological survey and chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, a powder can be made from dried red-squill bulbs which has an efficient and uniform toxicity for rats, but at the same time apparently does not unduly endanger human beings or domestic animals.

The use of powdered red squill for the destruction of rats is comparatively recent in this country, although the poison has been in limited use in Europe for centuries. It has never come into popular use, however, even there, because of its tendency to vary greatly in potency. Several of the factors influencing its toxicity have been developed during the course of the present investigation. Officials of the Department of Agriculture anticipate that these experiments will be of material assistance in the production of a uniform and stable squill product. This poison should greatly benefit the poultrymen and farmers generally who hesitate to use some of the commercial rat poisons on account of the attending danger to live stock.

Best Time to Make Hay From Red Clover Crop

The time to make hay from sweet clover is either the year after it is sown or the same fall it is sown. The best hay is obtained the same fall. Ordinarily it should be cut in September. It can be cut as late as October 1, if the weather at that time is suitable for curing the hay. The crop need not be cut any higher than any other hay crop.

In the late summer, the sweet clover plants form numerous large buds at the crowns which produce the next year's crop, and after these buds are well formed the sweet clover is ready for the winter, and taking off the season's growth does not injure it.

The second season, sweet clover must be cut high to keep from killing it. Two or three green leaves and branches should be left on the stubble. A thin stand of plants can be cut lower than a thick stand.

Farmers Being Urged to Cast Vote for Alfalfa

John Brown, agricultural agent in Owen county, Kentucky, taking advantage of the open political season, is urging farmers to cast their votes for Mr. Alfalfa. He says that if Mr. Alfalfa is elected he promises to do many things of real benefit to agriculture. Some of his promises follow:

"1. If elected I promise to put more dollars in the pockets of farmers.

"2. I will see to it that we have better luck with sheep, because we will have better feed.

"3. I promise to gather nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil, thereby building up fertility."

And he will make good. Vote for him.

Destroy Cutworms by Use of Poison and Plowing

The Iowa station reports that farmers have successfully controlled cutworm and army-worm invasions by broadcasting a poison mash with an endgate seeder. This mash is easily prepared from the following formula: Wheat bran, 20 to 25 pounds; paris green or sodium fluoride, 1 pound; cheap molasses, 2 pounds, and water 2 gallons. Early fall plowing of grass and pasture land hits the worms in their weakest spot, however, as it destroys a large part of the available food supply for late fall and early spring feeding.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

A Phenomenon

Frederick A. Wallis, New York's commissioner of corrections, has many ideas about his work, one being that prisons and corrective institutions should build up their inmates' self-respect by making them self-supporting.

Mr. Wallis, at a luncheon in New York, was talking to a woman about a certain reformatory.

"A queer thing happened to a young fellow back in 1901 in that reformatory," he said.

"Yes?" said the woman. "What was it?"

"He reformed."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

FEWER AND BETTER CHURCHES NEEDED, U. B. LEADERS TOLD

Columbus and other Big Cities
Would Be Better Off, Rev.
Dr. Lamb Says in Conference Talk.

Fewer and better organized churches with denominationalism subverted or wiped out entirely, and greater stress on the real purpose—work for the kingdom of God—were advocated by Rev. B. L. Lamb, secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, in an address before the twenty-seventh annual Southeast Ohio conference of the U. B. church last night in Washington Ave. Church, Columbus.

Columbus and other big cities would be better off with only one-fourth of their churches, were they properly located and equipped to meet the community's needs, Rev. Dr. Lamb asserted.

More salesmanship is required to sell religion, than to sell automobiles, real estate, insurance, or any commodity that can be felt, touched or measured, he said.

A plea for Christian support of government, international peace, universal brotherhood and law enforcement was made by Bishop A. R. Clippinger, Dayton.

"Every preacher should thunder from the pulpit his messages of peace and reasons for disarmament," he said. "Race prejudice will never make for peace."

While separate, yet the church and government are working hand in hand, he pointed out. With general applause as approval, Bishop Clippinger advocated "deportation of any man who would tear down the government of the United States."

He declared the next presidential campaign will be the most important since the Civil War days.

"This nation will live or die," he said, referring to law enforcement, "according to the regard her citizens have for the law of the land. It remains for every minister and every liberty-loving citizen to create a sentiment of loyalty and good will."

Other speakers last night included Rev. J. H. Harris, conference superintendent; Henry Green, on behalf of the local church; Charles Thurber, representing Mayor Thomas; Rev. A. G. Schatzman, the Columbus Ministerial Association, and R. L. Dickinson, acting general executive of Columbus Y. M. C. A.

Earl Anderson, Ashville; Miss Thelma Fletcher, Crooksville, and Miss Edna Beougher, Logan, have been recommended to Rev. Mr. Harris for licenses to the conference. A. Ward Clutch, Columbus, has been recommended for a quarterly conference license, as also have Charles F. Hizer, Coalton, and Raymond Chapman, Westerville.

Those recommended for lay licenses were G. C. Bloomfield, Ashville; Roy H. Bush, Camel; George Mercer, Lucasville, and J. L. Taylor, South Webster.

The council of administration recommended that the entire conference be divided into four commissions for the purpose of deliberating upon church problems. The commissions are to be named: Christian education, worldwide evangelism, finance, and social welfare.

Interesting Youth of Nation in Aviation

Thousands of boys and girls on organized playgrounds in some 800 American cities are expected to compete this summer in a national model airplane construction and flying contest encouraged by a committee headed by Orville Wright, airplane pioneer. The recent achievements of aviation, particularly the Lindbergh flight, inspired this competition, which will be conducted by the Playground and Recreation Association of America. It will come to a climax at national finals to be held in Memphis in October. The contest was suggested by Dr. John H. Finley, educator and editor, as a means of interesting the youth of America in the scientific principles underlying aviation. The three federal air secretaries, F. Truette Davison, of the War department; Edward P. Warner of the Navy, and William C. McCracken of the Commerce department, have accepted membership on the contest committee.

England's Rich Coal Field

One of the richest coal fields in the world, estimated to contain 23,000,000,000 tons, has been discovered near Hull, England. It is a continuation of an exhausted vein and extends 40 miles to the coast.

Silerius' Revolt

It is related that the wife of Silerius, the Roman, had a habit of insulting her husband at least once a day, believing this her wifely duty, in order to keep him within proper bounds. Silerius once said to her: "Madam, I fear you overdo your duty. I beg that you insult me only three times a week, that I may be able to overlook it, and save us from a final break in our domestic affairs."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

LOANS UP TO $500

We all enjoy listening to the yarns of an "old-timer," but its mighty poor policy to listen and accept the advice of the one who refuses to keep up with the times who believes that the only safe way to travel is "by rig" and that borrowing money is a shameful and terrible disgrace.

A great many prosperous men today owe their success to the fact that they were able to borrow money in order to take advantage of a chance to make a profit. Somewhere on another page of this newspaper is a real bargain for you—grab it up and make your start. The City Loan will supply the money.

Editor Union-Herald:—Just a word about the new telephone rates:I am not against the telephone company so long as they treat us right, but the new rates are too high and I do not think they are at all reasonable.To take all the phones out of the residences in the town would be a good thing for all of us in many ways. It would be a great source of economy as in most cases the telephone is too handy and we order too often and too much. Look at the good it would do us, physically, too, because we all sit and ride around too much and the art of walking is gone. To walk to the grocery, meat market and other stores would do us all good and at the same time we could see and get just what we wanted.For my part we can do without our residence phone.Let's hear from others along this line.

Yours truly,

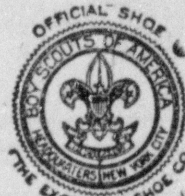

N. T. Weldon.

ARE POPULAR
IN COUNTRYMaking Very Serious Inroads
on Business of Steam and Electric Railroads.Steam and interurban electric rail roads are feeling the pinch of the increasing patronage of the motor passenger bus lines. The latter are making heavy inroads on the business of
the former. This is largely accounted for by the frequency with which
they operate and the accommodation
afforded by landing passengers in the business center of the towns which
they reach, or making stops at intersecting streets before the center of the town is reached.The proof that the steam and electric roads are feeling keenly the new
competition is shown by the large number of protests constantly filed
in the office of the Public Utilities
commission, asking that certificates
be denied applicants for motor passenger bus lines. These invariably
contain two outstanding reasons;
that the need of further transportation facilities is not demanded by the public and that to grant the certificate will materially reduce the revenues of the protesting company.Another convincing proof is the large number of trains which the
steam roads have asked authority to abandon during the past year. Many
of these have been on the larger rail
roads of the state. Still another proof
is in the fact that several of the larger interurban roads have inau-gured motor lines themselves and are running the busses in conjunction with their interurban cars.During the past year more than 200 protests have come into the office
of the Utilities commission against
the motor bus lines and the larger
part of these have been within the last six months.They come from every part of the state and all assign the reason that
competition with the motor line has
reduced profits until trains are being operated at a loss.Few complain of the opposition
which comes to their freight business
altho the growing number of motor
freight transportation lines is giving
alarm to what will happen if this continues.More than half the hearings before
the Utilities commission at present is
given over to consideration of these
protests and frequently the number
is so large that the commission is
forced to divide itself into two separate bodies, in order to keep pace
with the accumulating work.

WHERE "NELLIE GRAY"WAS WRITTEN.Two Ohio villages have long been
in dispute as to which is the birth-
place of the famous ballad, "Darling
Nellie Gray," written by Benjamin
R. Hanby. Westerville and Rushville
both lay claim to the honor and each
appears to have excellent evidence,
so the controversy has continued.
Mrs. Virginit Book, 86 years old, a lifelong resident of Rushville and a former pupil in the school where Hanby taught was an intimate friend
of Hanby's sister. Mrs. Book said
she often visited at the home where Hanby lived while teaching school
and often saw Hanby working on the ballad."While he was composing 'Nellie Gray' "she said, "he would frequently tell our class about the verse he
was working on at the time. Often
he would write a few lines of a verse
in class and many times I saw him
working in the little building after school had been dismissed. When Hanby completed the song he taught
it to the class by pointing out the words on the blackboard. I led the class when the ballad was first sung."On the other hand, Mrs. Cornelia Comings of Girard, Kansas, a former resident of Westerville, in an article published in the Ohio Magazine in 1906, asserted that she recalled the
initial singing of the song at the Hanby home in Westerville."I well remember the first time I heard it," she said. "We were at a gathering in Rev. Mr. Hanby's home
one evening. We always had music
at such times. At last I was called upon to listen to a song by young Hanby. I admired it very much and
then Ben told me it was intended for me."—Kansas City Star.These Labor-Saving DaysWe suppose posterity's way of com-

AMUSEMENTS

With the entire picture depicting only a five days' transcontinental railroad trip, "A Little Journey," adapted from the story by Rachel Crothers and directed by Robert Z. Leonard, is proving to patrons of the Met theater to be one of the most delightful pieces of entertainment of the year.

The train, consisting of engine, diner, baggage and express car, several Pullman cars and an observation coach, was brought to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on a spur track especially built for the occasion. In these practically the entire action of the picture takes place.

To make the film as novel as possible, real train and Pullman crews were used, and replicas of actual scenes enroute across the continent were built as huge sets at the M-G-M studio.

The time covered in the story consists of only five days—from the moment the train pulls out of New York until its arrival in San Francisco. This is the first time a picture has ever been filmed in its entirety aboard a train, with all the action taking place during a continuous trip.

While a great deal of the picture was filmed aboard the train at the studio, several sequences were filmed in the open country between Los Angeles and San Francisco, and in the station of the latter city.

Claire Windsor has the leading feminine role, that of Julie Rutherford, while William Haines, hero of "Brown of Harvard," has the part of George Manning, the smart youth who buys Julie a ticket to replace the one she lost in her exciting departure from the eastern metropolis.

Harry Carey, famous western film star, plays the character role of Alexander Smith and Claire McDowell, who was Ramon Novarro's mother in "Ben-Hur," is seen in the role of Aunt Louise.

George Smith, colored Pullman porter for many years, who is known to thousands of travelers between Chicago and the west coast made up more berths during the making of the picture, than he made up in ten years of transcontinental Pullman work.

THE BILLIONAIRE SPEAKS.

When an advertiser baits his hook with a testimonial from someone who knows nothing about the article, he's going fishing for suckers every time. Barnum certainly furnished the blueprints for building the gullible public.

When a man gets the championship belt as a pugilist he is supposed to become omniscient at the same time. Then his word is the best authority on anything the advertisers have for sale from corals to cars. That's nonsense unfenced.

But when the billionaire, Rockefeller, speaks about the stacking of the gold ducats we are getting an oration from the most skillful stacker the world has ever seen. Now listen to him.

"I seldom put my hand upon the pillow at night without speaking a few words to myself in this wise:

"Because you have got a start, you think you are quite a merchant; look out or you will lose your head—go steady."

"These intimate conversations with myself, I am sure, had a great influence on my life."

Thanks, friend Croesus, you said a bookful!

And so it is well to talk to yourself once in a while. You'll have a select audience who will understand every word, and who can't get up and walk out.

This is a twofold example the billionaire sets us, each fold teeming with possibility.

First, he admonishes us to "intimate conversations with ourselves." Get your mirror and sit down and talk with the fellow in it.

Secondly, he gives us a sample of one of the eloquent orations when himself is the only auditor.

Don't mislay your occiput. Don't get your wires crossed and count a start a windup. Don't play ague in business. Go steady like the diurnal turn of the world.

Any fish ought to feel complimented to be caught on bait like that.—Alexander Cairns.

Owl's Noiseless Flight

The flight of the owl is accomplished without the least noise, to enable it to reach its prey, some say, but in a recent book on birds the author says it has often occurred to him, however, that the silence of the owl's flight is to enable the bird itself to hear, rather than to prevent others from hearing it.

STEVENSON'S

BIRTHPLACE OF HYMN MARKED BY TABLET

History of "He Leadeth Me" Told by Author.

Philadelphia.—A bronze tablet has been placed by the United Gas Improvement company on its new building here as a permanent marker of the birthplace of the hymn "He Leadeth Me," and the historic fact that the first Baptist church once stood on the present site of the company's building. The tablet was erected on the Arch street side of the building. It bears date of June 1, 1926, erection having been delayed by the building of the new structure and the construction of the subway.

Information that paved the way for the erection of the tablet was given two years ago by the late Rev. Dr. John Gordon, a Baptist clergyman who pointed to a brownstone dwelling at 1400 Arch street, adjoining the new building, and said: "That old dwelling has a remarkable history; a wonderful hymn, 'He Leadeth Me,' was written there. The Rev. Dr. Gilmore wrote it way back in the '60s. The hymn has been sung all over the world."

Words Set to Music.

Dr. Gilmore, in his own account of the writing of the hymn, said:

"As a young man I was supplying for a couple of Sundays the pulpit of the First Baptist church in Philadelphia. At the midweek service—on the twenty-sixth of March, 1861—I set out to give the people an exposition of the twenty-third Psalm, which I had given before on three or four occasions; but this time I did not get further than the words, 'He leadeth me.' Those words took hold of me as they had never done before. I saw in them a significance and beauty of which I had never dreamed.

"At the close of the meeting a few of us kept on talking about the thought I had emphasized; and then there, on a blank page of the brief from which I had intended to speak, I penciled the hymn, handed it to my wife and thought no more about it.

"It occurred to her months afterward to send the hymn to a paper published in Boston, where it was printed. It attracted the attention of William B. Bradbury, who slightly modified the refrain and set the hymn to the music which has done so much to promote its popularity.

Hears His Hymn Sung.

"I did not know until 1865 that my hymn had been set to music. I went to Rochester to preach as a candidate before the Second Baptist church. Going into their chapel on the day that I reached the city, I took up a hymnal to see what they sang, and opened it at my own hymn, 'He Leadeth Me.' I accepted it as an indication of divine guidance, and have no doubt I was right."

Joseph H. Gilmore was born in Boston, April 29, 1834, the son of Joseph Albree Gilmore, governor of New Hampshire from 1863 to 1865. He was educated at Phillips-Andover academy, Brown university, and Newton Theological seminary.

Professor Gilmore taught at Newton one year and then became pastor of the Baptist church at Fisherville, N. H. He was called to the Second Baptist church of Rochester in 1865 and occupied the pulpit for two years. He was then appointed to the chair of English language and literature at the University of Rochester. He retired in 1908 after more than 40 years of service.

3,000 More Varieties of Roses in 20 Years

London.—Horticulturists of England have much more to contend with in the way of selecting flowers than they had several years ago.

Statistics just issued show there are 3,000 more different kinds of roses than there were 20 years ago. In the same time the gladioli have risen from 2,000 varieties to 12,000. In 1907 there were only 1,500 sorts of dahlias, whereas there now are 8,000.

Research in poultry nutrition, prevention, extension of the industry and marketing of fowls were discussed in sessions held by various divisions of the congress.

SUCCESS IN FIGHT ON DISEASE GERMS

Disease-causing bacteria have many devices to perpetuate their kind in an adverse world. Bacteriologists of the Hooper Foundation for Medical Research, University of California, have shown that tetanus spores may resist the temperature of boiling water for ninety minutes, botulism in vegetable juices for five and one-half hours and those of a closely related but harmless species, of eight and one-half hours. Other workers have proved that typhoid and other organisms may remain alive for years at refrigerator or lower temperatures. This constitutes a factor of great danger for man and animals which it is the function of scientific research to obviate, says Dr. George E. Coleman, of the Hooper foundation. "The brilliant success," he states, "that has been attained already, in which the experimental use of mice and guinea pigs has played a large part, is constantly being proclaimed by statistical evidence of fewer food poisonings and typhoid outbreaks as well as by increased protection from many of our other microscopic foes."

Bachelor's Shortcomings

Great Drawing Power

Charles Hanson Towne, the poet, gave a dinner at the Ritz in Paris during his recent European tour, and one of the sensations of the Ritz dining room was the success of a very aged and decrepit man. Though his age was great, and though his decrepitude amounted almost to paralysis or palsy, a dozen of the most beautiful girls in Paris hovered about him continually. "How that old man attracts the girls," a lady said to Mr. Towne. "What can be the secret of his attraction, I wonder?" "Why, don't you know?" the poet laughed. "He's a steel magnate."

Car No. 1—15,000 miles 61.377 M. P. H.—less than 14,664 minutes

Car No. 3—15,000 miles 62.709 M. P. H.—less than 14,353 minutes

Sedan

Three Auburn 8-88 Stock Cars Ran Total of:

42,000 miles in less than 14,664 minutes

Daring and unprecedented. Far in excess of any test ever imposed on stock cars. Not done behind pad locks and timed by factory employees, but publicly, under American Automobile Association sanction and supervision.

We decided to go to extremes never before undertaken by any manufacturer in order to completely, conclusively, and overwhelmingly prove Auburn is a faster, more efficient and more durable stock car.

Through blinding fogs; through down pours of rain, under the hottest sun in years; 28 thousand times around the 1½ mile track on slippery boards; never have men and machines endured such abnormal strains!

Nine drivers, working relays days and night, could not over tax the endurance and speed of the Auburn cars. Old records completely smashed from 5 to 5,000 miles for fully equipped stock cars. New records at every revolution of the wheels from 5,000 to 15,000 miles. The speed was phenomenal . . . 34 new stock car records . . .

But What Of It?

We knew all along that Auburn cars are that fast. But, it is not Auburn's proven speed superiority that is most significant . . . frankly, that was easy and incidental. What IS important is the fine character of car necessary for all three cars to survive such speed.

How's This For Proof?

After one of the roadsters had run the unequalled distance often thousand gruelling miles, in less than 9,479 minutes at an average speed of over 63 miles per hour, it was taken off the track, thoroughly checked—necessary replacements made—tuned and greased.

Then, for 1,000 miles more, this same car spurred forward at over 72 miles per hour. That proves reserve power, speed and endurance unknown in motor cars until now.

Another Thriller

After 2,637 miles, the Sedan running at about

70 miles an hour speed, turned over on the wet track, during a rainstorm in the middle of the night, slid on its top with all four wheels in the air, for about 50 feet, righted itself and then crashed into the railing. Two doors and three fenders were torn off, radiator and windshield smashed. Seven hours were spent for photographs, radiator and other body repairs and the car went back on the track. It caught up with the other cars, and finished the 15,000 miles at over 62 miles per hour speed. That proves the strong construction, and endurance of Auburn cars, although because in the accident, it lost three fenders and two doors, its entire distance cannot be counted as an official A. A. A. record, but it was officially timed by the A. A. A.

Triple Proof

It would have been perfectly startling if one car had broken all these records, but three Auburn cars were in this test—and all three of them did honor to the name of Auburn.

Corn Borer Marches South.

The recent reports of the federal field scouts show that the European Corn Borer has been discovered in Franklin, Union, Shelby, Delaware, Harrison and Jefferson counties.

This means that the corn borer is just across the border from the Pickaway plains. No official infestation of the corn borer has yet been discovered in Pickaway County however. These facts indicate the problem which will soon confront the Pickaway county corn grower. Clean harvesting, low cutting, destruction of standing stalks after harvest will aid materially in keeping this enemy in check.

Might Spare a Few

It is said that never was there a gentler critic than Doctor McClintock of Dickinson college. One day a young orator presented his speech for Doctor McClintock's approval. He evidently did not anticipate adverse criticism.

He received it, nevertheless, given in the doctor's gentle, humorous way, which never could offend.

"It's a good speech," he said, "but there is, perhaps, a little too much of a certain sort of rhetoric. For instance, I find two midnight owls, two midnight wolves, three American eagles and four unfurled banners. It seems to me the supply exceeds the demand."

Many a seemingly successful man owes it all to his wife's father.

LITTLE CITY
I found a little city
Where everything was still,
A little quiet city
Upon a grassy hill.
And some came to the city,
Who prayed, and some who wept,
But all the people living there
Were silent, for they slept.

The flowers in the city
Were pink and gold and blue;
Rosemary for remembrance,
And pansy buds, and rue.
And all the trees that grew there
Were gallantly in leaf.
But, oh, the little city,
Was still, beyond belief.

Yet I, who found the city,
I was not wholly sad;
For all the peaceful beauty
Made something in me glad.
I knew that He who planned it
Does all things for the best,
That, in His care, the city
Knew blessed love and rest.

TOOK COFFIN ON JOURNEY FOR HEALTH

Flaunting death, pushing a coffin ahead of him, on which was inscribed "This is my coffin," California or die," Bedros Sarejian, an Armenian, 70, was overtaken by death as he trundled his queer wagon on the Brandt pike at Sulphur Grove, near Dayton, late Thursday. He was found dying by the roadside. An auto was believed responsible for his death.
Sarejian set out from New York City July 1, in search of health. The coffin on wheels served as traveling bag and commissariat. It held his food, spare clothing and a few other articles including a Turkish water-bottle pipe.

They Arrived at Farrow Street

By ROSE MEREDITH

(Copyright.)

AMY FARROW was waiting for the last trolley car home. She had been spending the evening with one of her friends on the outskirts of the city, and had stayed later than she intended. Now she blamed herself for being so late—it had been a mistake to leave her grandmother alone, though Phoebe Riddle had promised to spend the evening with the old lady, and Phoebe was their best friend and next-door neighbor.

When at last it came she got in and settled down in a corner, for it would take fifteen minutes to reach the street where the Farrow's lived.

The conductor thrust a grimy hand forward and Amy dropped a nickel in it, and went on thinking about Jane Mason, whose wedding presents she had come out to see this evening. Jane was to be married next week and the girls had been full of the coming event. Now that Amy was alone, her thoughts reverted to her own affairs—she might have been planning her own wedding if she had not broken her engagement to Billy Wakefield so long ago! It was perhaps a year since her father's sudden death at a critical point in his business affairs had brought utter ruin to the family—and when they had had to sell the large house and all of its contents and go to live in Granny's old-fashioned house. Mrs. Farrow had mourned so over her husband's failure and death that her own fragile health was weakened, and it was not long before she, too, joined her departed husband. That left Amy all alone with Grandmother Farrow in the old Farrow homestead.

Amy was very proud in those days, and because she could not bring money with her love, she had broken her engagement to Billy Wakefield, who was the son of the richest man in the state! Billy did not go near Amy again. She had taken a teaching position in a fashionable girls' school in the town, and she and grandmother lived comfortably enough.

At this point in her musings, the conductor came around for another fare and this time it was a different hand that was presented for payment—a clean-skinned, brown, muscular hand, wearing on the little finger a true lover's knot of twisted gold and platinum. It was a ring just like the one that Amy had given her lover when they became engaged—and which he had never returned to her.

Amy pulled a ten-cent piece from her purse, it slipped from her fingers and bounced out of the seat and fell somewhere on the floor.

"Oh, that is all I have!" declared Amy, looking up at the conductor, and then, staring fascinated, for the handsome, good-looking face was that of Billy Wakefield!

As for Billy, he stared at her from deep blue eyes, as if he could not speak.

"That is the last cent that I have with me," declared Amy in a faltering voice.

"Never mind—we will find it in the morning," he declared, and put it in his pocket, as he rang up the fare, handing her a bright nickel in change.

"Thank you," said Amy. "You are quite sure that you can find the ten-cent piece in the morning?"

"Sure as can be," he said, and touching his cap went to the front of the car.

After awhile the last passenger got off, and Amy was left alone. As she sat there, she wondered why Billy Wakefield should be working for the trolley company—she had not heard that Mr. Wakefield had failed.

Just then, Billy Wakefield, looking so smart and trim in his new dark blue uniform, came down the car again and removed his cap.

"There is another fare due, Miss Farrow," he said in a low tone, and then Amy, her eyes hidden under long lashes, dropped the nickel in his extended palm. His hand closed on her small one and he bent over the seat.

"Amy," he said tensely, "are you happy, dear?"

"No, Billy, never without you!" she said with a little sob in her voice.

"Then," whispered Billy, slipping into the seat beside her, "will you marry me, Amy?"

"Yes, Billy," she whispered, her tear-wet cheek against his.

"You don't mind my being a trolley conductor?"

"I just don't care at all—about anything except you!"

"You haven't asked once why I am on this car," accused Billy after awhile. "Have you heard that the Wakefield fortune is a thing of the past?"

"No! I hadn't heard!" declared Amy. "I am sorry for your father and mother, Billy—it is hard for old people to be deprived of—"

"Rubbish, my love," declared Billy. "The Wakefield millions still stand firm as a rock—I am doing this job on a bet with dad who is a big stock holder, and all the money I earn goes into the trolleyman's union fund."

Next week I have to go back to the office again—do you still love me, Amy?"

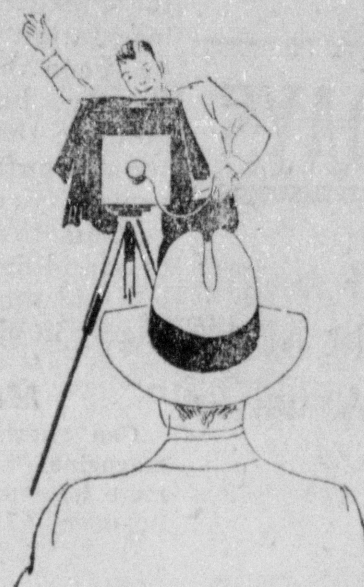

"Always—Billy, I cannot help it," she confessed, and then the trolleyman sang out—

"Farrow street!"

So Amy could dream of wedding plans all over again!

Indians Had Popcorn

The Indians of the pre-Columbian period did have a variety of corn similar to our popcorn. In the Southwest this was called "little corn." It is doubtful, however, that the aborigines used such corn for popping purposes, but it is probable that our popcorn was developed from this Indian variety.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Discarded Mower Is Easily Put in Shape

Little Time and Money Will Put Machine in Order.

Many times an old mower is discarded as worn out when a little time and money spent in replacing worn parts and adjusting the machine would put it in first-class shape again, it is pointed out by R. I. Shawl of the farm mechanics department, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Mower troubles can be classed under three main heads, namely: heavy draft, side draft and uneven or ragged stubble.

Heavy draft is caused from lack of lubrication, dull sickle, wear and side draft due to improper adjustment of the cutter bar parts. The cutter bar with the sickle and other cutting parts is the chief source of trouble. Side draft is due to a dragging back on the cutter bar of the uncut hay or grass and insufficient tension on the supporting spring to the cutter bar. A dull sickle in a properly adjusted cutter bar will not give side draft.

"In adjusting the cutter bar parts see that the guards are all in line. A hammer may be used to drive the guards back in line. The ledger plates must be held in place tightly and the edges must be sharp. The clips must hold the sickle sections down against the ledger plate so that the cutting will be done without chewing the stalks. The sickle sections should always center in the guards at the end of each stroke.

"Sickle breaking is a trouble experienced in some mowers and is usually due to the worn condition of the wearing plates, clips and guides that hold the sickle head in place. Adjustments for taking up this wear are provided on all mowers."

Efficient and Uniform

Toxicity Made for Rats

According to results of experiments conducted jointly by the bureaus of biological survey and chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture, a powder can be made from dried red-squill bulbs which has an efficient and uniform toxicity for rats, but at the same time apparently does not unduly endanger human beings or domestic animals.

The use of powdered red squill for the destruction of rats is comparatively recent in this country, although the poison has been in limited use in Europe for centuries. It has never come into popular use, however, even there, because of its tendency to vary greatly in potency. Several of the factors influencing its toxicity have been developed during the course of the present investigation. Officials of the Department of Agriculture anticipate that these experiments will be of material assistance in the production of a uniform and stable squill product. This poison should greatly benefit the poultrymen and farmers generally who hesitate to use some of the commercial rat poisons on account of the attending danger to live stock.

Best Time to Make Hay From Red Clover Crop

The time to make hay from sweet clover is either the year after it is sown or the same fall it is sown. The best hay is obtained the same fall. Ordinarily it should be cut in September. It can be cut as late as October 1, if the weather at that time is suitable for curing the hay. The crop need not be cut any higher than any other hay crop.

In the late summer, the sweet clover plants form numerous large buds at the crowns which produce the next year's crop, and after these buds are well formed the sweet clover is ready for the winter, and taking off the season's growth does not injure it.

The second season, sweet clover must be cut high to keep from killing it. Two or three green leaves and branches should be left on the stubble. A thin stand of plants can be cut lower than a thick stand.

Farmers Being Urged to Cast Vote for Alfalfa

John Brown, agricultural agent in Owen county, Kentucky, taking advantage of the open political season, is urging farmers to cast their votes for Mr. Alfalfa. He says that if Mr. Alfalfa is elected he promises to do many things of real benefit to agriculture. Some of his promises follow:

"1. If elected I promise to put more dollars in the pockets of farmers.

"2. I will see to it that we have better luck with sheep, because we will have better feed.

"3. I promise to gather nitrogen from the air and store it in the soil, thereby building up fertility."

And he will make good. Vote for him.

Destroy Cutworms by Use of Poison and Plowing

The Iowa station reports that farmers have successfully controlled cutworm and army-worm invasions by broadcasting a poison mash with an endgate seeder. This mash is easily prepared from the following formula: Wheat bran, 20 to 25 pounds; paris green or sodium fluoride, 1 pound; cheap molasses, 2 pounds, and water 2 gallons. Early fall plowing of grass and pasture land hits the worms in their weakest spot, however, as it destroys a large part of the available food supply for late fall and early spring feeding.

Frederick A. Wallis, New York's commissioner of corrections, has many ideas about his work, one being that prisons and corrective institutions should build up their inmates' self-respect by making them self-supporting.

"A queer thing happened to a young fellow back in 1901 in that reformatory," he said.

"Yes?" said the woman. "What was it?"

FEWER AND BETTER CHURCHES NEEDED, U. B. LEADERS TOLD

Columbus and other Big Cities Would Be Better Off, Rev. Dr. Lamb Says in Conference Talk.

Fewer and better organized churches with denominationalism subserved or wiped out entirely, and greater stress on the real purpose—work for the kingdom of God—were advocated by Rev. B. L. Lamb, secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches, in an address before the twenty-seventh annual Southeast Ohio conference of the U. B. church last night in Washington Ave. Church, Columbus.

Columbus and other big cities would be better off with only one-fourth of their churches, were they properly located and equipped to meet the community's needs, Rev. Dr. Lamb asserted.

More salesmanship is required to sell religion, than to sell automobiles, real estate, insurance, or any commodity that can be felt, touched or measured, he said.

A plea for Christian support of government, international peace, universal brotherhood and law enforcement was made by Bishop A. R. Clippinger, Dayton.

"Every preacher should thunder from the pulpit his messages of peace and reasons for disarmament," he said. "Race prejudice will never make for peace."

While separate, yet the church and government are working hand in hand, he pointed out. With general applause as approval, Bishop Clippinger advocated "deportation of any man who would tear down the government of the United States."

He declared the next presidential campaign will be the most important since the Civil War days.

"This nation will live or die," he said, referring to law enforcement, "according to the regard her citizens have for the law of the land. It remains for every minister and every liberty-loving citizen to create a sentiment of loyalty and good will."

Other speakers last night included Rev. J. H. Harris, conference superintendent; Henry Green, on behalf of the local church; Charles Thurber, representing Mayor Thomas; Rev. A. G. Schatzman, the Columbus Ministerial Association, and R. L. Dickinson, acting general executive of Columbus Y. M. C. A.

Earl Anderson, Ashville; Miss Thelma Fletcher, Crooksville, and Miss Edna Beougher, Logan, have been recommended to Rev. Mr. Harris for licenses to the conference. A. Ward Clutch, Columbus, has been recommended for a quarterly conference license, as also have Charles F. Hizer, Coalton, and Raymond Chapman, Westerville.

Those recommended for lay licenses were G. C. Bloomfield, Ashville; Roy H. Bush, Camel; George Mercer, Lucasville, and J. L. Taylor, South Webster.

The council of administration recommended that the entire conference be divided into four commissions for the purpose of deliberating upon church problems. The commissions are to be named: Christian education, worldwide evangelism, finance, and social welfare.

Interesting Youth of Nation in Aviation

Thousands of boys and girls on organized playgrounds in some 800 American cities are expected to compete this summer in a national model airplane construction and flying contest encouraged by a committee headed by Orville Wright, airplane pioneer. The recent achievements of aviation, particularly the Lindbergh flight, inspired this competition, which will be conducted by the Playground and Recreation Association of America. It will come to a climax at national finals to be held in Memphis in October. The contest was suggested by Dr. John H. Finley, educator and editor, as a means of interesting the youth of America in the scientific principles underlying aviation. The three federal air secretaries, F. Truette Davison, of the War department; Edward P. Warner of the Navy, and William C. McCracken of the Commerce department, have accepted membership on the contest committee.

England's Rich Coal Field

One of the richest coal fields in the world, estimated to contain 23,000,000,000 tons, has been discovered near Hull, England. It is a continuation of an exhausted vein and extends 40 miles to the coast.

Silerius' Revolt

It is related that the wife of Silerius, the Roman, had a habit of insulting her husband at least once a day, believing this her wifely duty, in order to keep him within proper bounds. Silerius once said to her: "Madam, I fear you overdo your duty. I beg that you insult me only three times a week, that I may be able to overlook it, and save us from a final break in our domestic affairs."—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

We all enjoy listening to the yarns of an "old-timer," but its mighty poor policy to listen and accept the advice of the one who refuses to keep up with the times who believes that the only safe way to travel is "by rig" and that borrowing money is a shameful and terrible disgrace.

LETTER FROM A TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBER

Below we print a letter from N. T. Weldon, which contains some good food for thought and which we hope will be carefully considered by all our readers. We would be glad to publish the views of others of our citizens.

Mr. Weldon's letter is as follows:
 Editor Union-Herald:—Just a word about the new telephone rates:

I am not against the telephone company so long as they treat us right, but the new rates are too high and I do not think they are at all reasonable.

To take all the phones out of the residences in the town would be a good thing for all of us in many ways. It would be a great source of economy as in most cases the telephone is too handy and we order too often and too much. Look at the good it would do us, physically, too, because we all sit and ride around too much and the art of walking is gone. To walk to the grocery, meat market and other stores would do us all good and at the same time we could see and get just what we wanted.

For my part we can do without our residence phone.

Let's hear from others along this line.

Yours truly,
 N. T. Weldon.

MOTOR LINES ARE POPULAR IN COUNTRY

Making Very Serious Inroads
 on Business of Steam and Electric Railroads.

Steam and interurban electric railroads are feeling the pinch of the increasing patronage of the motor passenger bus lines. The latter are making heavy inroads on the business of
 the former. This is largely accounted for by the frequency with which
 they operate and the accommodation
 afforded by landing passengers in the business center of the towns which
 they reach, or making stops at intersecting streets before the center of
 the town is reached.

The proof that the steam and electric roads are feeling keenly the new
 competition is shown by the large number of protests constantly filed
 in the office of the Public Utilities
 commission, asking that certificates
 be denied applicants for motor passenger bus lines. These invariably
 contain two outstanding reasons;
 that the need of further transportation facilities is not demanded by the public and that to grant the certificate will materially reduce the revenues of the protesting company.

Another convincing proof is the large number of trains which the
 steam roads have asked authority to abandon during the past year. Many of these have been on the larger rail
 roads of the state. Still another proof
 is in the fact that several of the larger interurban roads have inaugurated motor lines themselves and are
 running the busses in conjunction
 with their interurban cars.

During the past year more than 200 protests have come into the office
 of the Utilities commission against
 the motor bus lines and the larger
 part of these have been within the last six months.

They come from every part of the state and all assign the reason that
 competition with the motor line has
 reduced profits until trains are being operated at a loss.

Few complain of the opposition
 which comes to their freight business
 altho the growing number of motor
 freight transportation lines is giving
 alarm to what will happen if this
 continues.

More than half the hearings before
 the Utilities commission at present is
 given over to consideration of these
 protests and frequently the number
 is so large that the commission is
 forced to divide itself into two separate bodies, in order to keep pace
 with the accumulating work.

WHERE "NELLIE GRAY"

WAS WRITTEN.

Two Ohio villages have long been
 in dispute as to which is the birth-
 place of the famous ballad, "Darling
 Nellie Gray," written by Benjamin
 R. Hanby. Westerville and Rushville
 both lay claim to the honor and each
 appears to have excellent evidence,
 so the controversy has continued.
 Mrs. Virginit Book, 86 years old, a lifelong resident of Rushville and a former pupil in the school where Hanby taught was an intimate friend
 of Hanby's sister. Mrs. Book said
 she often visited at the home where Hanby lived while teaching school
 and often saw Hanby working on the ballad.

"While he was composing 'Nellie Gray' "she said, "he would frequently tell our class about the verse he was working on at the time. Often
 he would write a few lines of a verse
 in class and many times I saw him
 working in the little building after school had been dismissed. When Hanby completed the song he taught
 it to the class by pointing out the
 words on the blackboard. I led the
 class when the ballad was first sung."

On the other hand, Mrs. Cornelia
 Comings of Girard, Kansas, a former resident of Westerville, in an article
 published in the Ohio Magazine in 1906, asserted that she recalled the
 initial singing of the song at the Hanby home in Westerville.

"I well remember the first time I
 heard it," she said. "We were at a gathering in Rev. Mr. Hanby's home
 one evening. We always had music
 at such times. At last I was called upon to listen to a song by young Hanby. I admired it very much and
 then Ben told me it was intended for me."—Kansas City Star.

AMUSEMENTS
With the entire picture depicting only a five days' transcontinental railroad trip, "A Little Journey," adapted from the story by Rachel Crothers and directed by Robert Z. Leonard, is proving to patrons of the Met theater to be one of the most delightful pieces of entertainment of the year.
The train, consisting of engine, diner, baggage and express car, several Pullman cars and an observation coach, was brought to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio on a spur track especially built for the occasion. In these practically the entire action of the picture takes place.
To make the film as novel as possible, real train and Pullman crews were used, and replicas of actual scenes enroute across the continent were built as huge sets at the M-G-M studio.
The time covered in the story consists of only five days—from the moment the train pulls out of New York until its arrival in San Francisco. This is the first time a picture has ever been filmed in its entirety aboard a train, with all the action taking place during a continuous trip.
While a great deal of the picture was filmed aboard the train at the studio, several sequences were filmed in the open country between Los Angeles and San Francisco, and in the station of the latter city.
Claire Windsor has the leading feminine role, that of Julie Rutherford, while William Haines, hero of "Brown of Harvard," has the part of George Manning, the smart youth who buys Julie a ticket to replace the one she lost in her exciting departure from the eastern metropolis.
Harry Carey, famous western film star, plays the character role of Alexander Smith and Claire McDowell, who was Ramon Navarro's mother in "Ben-Hur," is seen in the role of Aunt Louise.
George Smith, colored Pullman porter for many years, who is known to thousands of travelers between Chicago and the west coast made up more berths during the making of the picture, than he made up in ten years of transcontinental Pullman work.

THE BILLIONAIRE SPEAKS.
When an advertiser baits his hook with a testimonial from someone who knows nothing about the article, he's going fishing for suckers every time. Barnum certainly furnished the blueprints for building the gullible public.
When a man gets the championship belt as a pugilist he is supposed to become omniscient at the same time. Then his word is the best authority on anything the advertisers have for sale from corals to cars. That's nonsense unfenced.
But when the billionaire, Rockefeller, speaks about the stacking of the gold ducats we are getting an oration from the most skillful stacker the world has ever seen. Now listen to him.
"I seldom put my hand upon the pillow at night without speaking a few words to myself in this wise:
"Because you have got a start, you think you are quite a merchant; look out or you will lose your head—go steady.
"These intimate conversations with myself, I am sure, had a great influence on my life."
Thanks, friend Croesus, you said a bookful!
And so it is well to talk to yourself once in a while. You'll have a select audience who will understand every word, and who can't get up and walk out.
This is a twofold example the billionaire sets us, each fold teeming with possibility.
First, he admonishes us to "intimate conversations with ourselves." Get your mirror and sit down and talk with the fellow in it.
Secondly, he gives us a sample of one of the eloquent orations when himself is the only auditor.
Don't mislay your occiput. Don't get your wires crossed and count a start a windup. Don't play ague in business. Go steady like the diurnal turn of the world.
Any fish ought to feel complimented to be caught on bait like that.—Alexander Cairns.

Owl's Noiseless Flight
The flight of the owl is accomplished without the least noise, to enable it to reach its prey, some say, but in a recent book on birds the author says it has often occurred to him, however, that the silence of the owl's flight is to enable the bird itself to hear, rather than to prevent others from hearing it.
